

CONNECTING PEOPLE TO CHURCHES

Earlier this year, parts of Australia endured high floods which resulted in damaged homes and property. One woman reached out to Stewards Foundation, after hearing about our Disaster Relief Fund. Stewards Foundation were able to connect her to her local CCCAust church, Coastlands Community Church, to pass on the funds, and build a relationship. The woman was not only helped by the people at Coastlands and the Disaster Relief Fund, but she also has been able to connect with her local CCCAust church, and experience God's love, through the generosity of his people.

If you know of anyone who experienced damage to their home or property as a result of the devastating fires and floods over the summer of 2019-2020, please get in contact with us. The result may be establishing a connection with someone who needs it.

WORKING FROM HOME

As of the end of March, Stewards Foundation began working from home due to the social restrictions, enforced because of Covid-19. Although it is very different to working in an office, Stewards employees have adapted well to their new working environments and have been utilising technologies such as Zoom to connect every day for meetings and team catch-ups.

Many non-essential workers have had to work from home, as restrictions continue to be enforced. Below are some tips to help you stay productive and efficient, whilst working from home.

Ø Designate a quiet, empty, and spacious area of your home to be your workspace and convert it to be your home office. Commit to working in this space every day, and make sure it is quiet and distraction free so you can focus on your tasks.

Ø Exercise and stretch regularly to get a natural endorphin boost and avoid getting sore or stiff. Find a time of the day that works for you to exercise, whether it be in the morning to help you start the day, or in the afternoon to allow you to wind down.

Ø Regularly check in with your colleagues to maintain social interactions. Discuss projects they are working on and ask how they are going in their personal lives. It is important to maintain relationships with your co-workers and ensure that working from home does not affect your social interactions.

ACCOUNTING SERVICES FOR CHURCHES

Did you know that Stewards Foundation offer a range of accounting services to CCCAust churches? These services include financial reporting, Business Activity Statement lodgements, pastor expense claims, payroll services and bank reconciliations. These services are put in place so that church elders and leaders can focus on spreading God's love through their church, rather than the financial elements.

Allawah Community Church is a church who have taken advantage of these services. If you are interested in taking advantage of these services, give us a call today.
